

Seattle Children's[®]
HOSPITAL • RESEARCH • FOUNDATION

This is different.

Children's Hospital and Regional Medical Center is now Seattle Children's. Why the change? Well, we've become one of the top children's hospitals by being more than a hospital. With the support of our Foundation, we're also conducting breakthrough research on some of the worst childhood diseases. And although we treat children from all over, our name pays tribute to the city we call home. We also have a new logo to reflect the region and our commitment to compassionate care. To learn more, visit www.seattlechildrens.org.

This is the same.

Seattle Children's has always been, and always will be, dedicated to giving children the best possible care. That's why we're not only treating children in the Northwest, we're pioneering new cures for childhood diseases, and improving and expanding programs and facilities in key areas like pediatric cancer and heart disease. So while we're certainly excited about our new name and logo, we're much more excited about all the ways we can help children and their families.

Hope. Care. Cure.™