

Carrie Henderson, MD

Dr. Henderson completed her pediatrics residency served as chief resident at the Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt, in Nashville, TN, and did a pediatric critical care fellowship at Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center. During her fellowship in critical care, Dr. Henderson developed a broad interest in medical ethics, particularly related to end-of-life care, organ transplantation in children, and decisions about advanced medical care. She joined the ethics committee at Cincinnati Children's Hospital and attended the intensive bioethics course at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. She also completed a yearlong fellowship in Clinical Medical Ethics at the MacLean Center for Clinical Medical Ethics at the University of Chicago during her final year of critical care training. She is currently an assistant professor of pediatric critical care at University of Mississippi Medical Center and is part of their Center for Bioethics and Medical Humanities.
