

Jennifer Kett, MD, MA

Dr. Jennifer Kett is a graduating fellow in the Palliative Medicine Program at the University of Washington. She earned her Master's Degree in Bioethics and Humanities at the University of Washington and completed the Pediatric Bioethics fellowship at the Treuman Katz Center in 2014. Before moving to the Pacific Northwest, she also completed a Neonatology fellowship at Children's National Medical Center in Washington, DC. Her research interests include decision-making with families of preterm and critically ill neonates throughout the perinatal period. She has accepted a position in Pediatric Palliative Medicine starting this fall at Mary Bridge Children's Hospital in Tacoma, WA, and is pleased that her long stint as a fellow is finally at its close.
