

Melissa Weddle, MD, MPH

I received my medical education at University of Virginia, residency at Case Western Reserve, public health training at Johns Hopkins, and ethics education at Loyola Chicago. I have lived in Portland, Oregon for the past 8 years, where I am currently general pediatrics faculty at Oregon Health and Science University. My academic interests include adolescent medicine, effective communication, and clinical ethics.