

Douglas J. Opel, MD, MPH

Douglas J. Opel, MD, MPH is a faculty member at the Treuman Katz Center for Pediatric Bioethics at Seattle Children's Hospital, and an assistant professor in the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Washington School of Medicine. Dr. Opel received his BS from Duke University and his MD from the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine. He completed his pediatric residency at the University of Washington School of Medicine in 2005, and served as chief pediatric resident in 2006. Dr. Opel completed a fellowship in pediatric bioethics at Seattle Children's Hospital in 2009.

Dr. Opel currently practices general pediatrics at Seattle Children's Hospital and University of Washington Medical Center. His research interests include provider-parent communication, health communication, public health ethics, and clinical ethics consultation.

He has presented nationally on topics related to communication strategies for providers who encounter parents who refuse or delay childhood immunizations and the underlying causes of provider-parent conflict that reach the level of ethics consultation. He has also published articles on bioethical issues in major journals, including Pediatrics, JAMA Pediatrics, British Medical Journal, and Hastings Center Report.