The most experienced pediatric surgery team in the region.

When your child needs surgery, you want experienced surgeons you can trust to provide the best and most compassionate care. The Pediatric General and Thoracic Surgery Team at Seattle Children’s has the most experience in the Pacific Northwest with simple to complex surgeries.

Even though we’re a surgical team, we often use nonoperative methods to treat children. But, if we determine that an operation is the best method to fix your child’s condition, we consider the needs of your child and your family. We know that managing your child’s pain after surgery is critical to the healing process. We have the largest dedicated team of specialty-trained pediatric anesthesiologists who only take care of children.

Why Choose Children’s for Pediatric Surgery?

Our expertise and the range of services we provide are the top reasons doctors refer their patients to the Pediatric Surgery Team at Seattle Children’s. From managing a hernia or appendicitis to operating on the most complex congenital defect, we provide expert care to children from infancy through young adulthood.

Our high volumes mean greater expertise. In 2014, our general surgeons had more than 5,000 clinic visits and performed more than 2,600 surgical procedures.

- All our surgeons are fellowship trained and board certified in pediatric surgery.
- Our skilled surgeons carefully assess the options and choose the best treatment — even if that means setting aside their scalpels and referring patients to other specialists or recommending no surgery at all.
- We have expertise in a broad range of operative approaches, including minimally invasive techniques using laparoscopy, thoracoscopy or robot-assisted surgery.
- Our expert pediatric surgeons work with our neonatal team to treat congenital anomalies at or just after birth in our Level IV Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU). Seattle Children’s is the first hospital in Washington to have a Level IV NICU.
